Peasants Reported on March to Bucharest

SEEK TO OUST PRESENT HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

Gigantic Demonstration Planned at Roumanian Capital, Dispatches State

TROOPS ON GUARD

Preparations Made for Trouble, Although Leaders Say Intentions Are Peaceful

Berlin, May 7—Thousands of Roumanian peasants, who took part in the Alba Julia convention which demanded the resignation of the present Roumanian cabinet, are marching upon Bucharest to make a gigantic demonstration, according to advices received this afternoon from German correspondents who crossed the Transylvanian frontier from Alba Julia to avoid the Roumanian censorship.

While leaders of the peasant army claim that their intention is peaceful, danger of a real uprising is believed to be acute if the peasants are thwarted.

Called "Modern Crusade"

Correspondents described the march of the picturesquely clad peasants as a modern crusade. Men, women and children are in the caravan. Old and young are trudging on foot or riding in heavy, lumbering wagons drawn by oxen. Some of the more prosperous are riding in automobiles. The mountain passes are jammed with the swarm of humanity.

Telephone and telegraph communication with Alba Julia has been cut since late Sunday.

Heavy forces of armed troops are reported patrolling the Bucharest streets.

The distance from Alba Julia to Bucharest is 245 miles and the peasants will begin to reach the capital before the end of the week unless they are stopped.

Queen Marie is remaining in the background.

Palace Guarded

It is reported that heavy forces of picked troops are guarding the Royal Palace and a special bodyguard has been provided for seven-year old King Michael. The real storm center is Vintila Bratianu, brother of Jon Bratianu, who died last year while holding the office of prime minister.

Leaders of the peasants took dramatic oath at Alba Julia to continue the

ENTER CHURCHES

Burglars Get $500 in Visits to Edifices at Columbus

Columbus, May 7—Safecrackers who entered two churches here after the services last night are being sought by police today.

The yeggs gained entrance to the Broad Street M. E. Church by entering a rear door and succeeded in opening the safe and escaping with Sunday School and church money aggregating approximately $500, according to police.

The other church entered was the first English Lutheran. The combination was knocked from the safe, but the door refused to open.

ARMY DREDGE SINKS; REPORT 17 MEN MISSING

Craft Goes Down After Striking Freighter in N. Y. Narrows

New York, May 7—Seventeen men were reported missing in the sinking of the U. S. army dredge Navesink in the narrows early today.

Swinging out of control in a swift ebbtide, the dredge struck the anchored freighter Swinburn. Within five minutes the dredge plunged to the bottom in 60 feet of water.

Lifeboats from nearby liners and coast guard cutters picked up 29 of the dredge crew. A telephone call to the army engineers' office stated another man had been saved.

First Assistant Engineer Henry Rickert, of New York, died at his post, according to a mess boy who was among the survivors.

Thomas Chapman, 15, of Brooklyn, was trapped in his cabin when the inrushing waters slammed the door shut, according to another of the crew.

REQUEST PROTECTION FOR OHIO MINERS

Men Ready To Return to Work, Delegation Tells State Officials

Columbus, May 7—Seeking protection for miners in the Hocking district who may return to work within the next few days, a delegation of about a dozen members of the Athens-Hocking-Perry County Citic Association conferred at the governor's office today with Adjutant General Frank Henderson and Jacob Meckstroth, private secretary to Governor Vic Donahey.

The conferees included Mayors Alex Moore, Athens, and L. J. Eberle, Nelsonville.

The delegation told Henderson and Meckstroth that officials of the Ohio Collieries, the Sunday Creek and the New York Coal companies planned opening a number of their mines in Athens County this week and that many of the striking miners in the Hocking district personally desired to go to work on the $5-per-day base offered by the operators.

Anxious To Work

Members of the delegation asserted that at least 80 per cent of the striking miners want to go back to work, despite the orders of union leaders that they hold out for the Jacksonville scale providing for $7.50 per day.

The delegation was advised to urge the sheriff of Athens County to make every possible effort to afford such protection as may be necessary by hiring deputies. It was pointed out also, that about 16 officers and enlisted men of the Ohio National Guard who did relief work during the last several months in the Hocking field will remain at Nelsonville for a while.

Their services, it was stated, would be available in the event that trouble developed.

Candidates For Presidency Making Race on "Financial Shoestrings," Inquiry Shows

Interesting Figures Disclosed as Senate Opens Campaign Fund Investigation; Curtis Reports Largest Expenditure to Date

WASHINGTON, May 7—A battalion of presidential candidates, parading through the witness stand at the senate's presidential campaign funds inquiry, revealed today that most of their campaigns were being conducted on financial "shoestrings."

The inquiry opened with the calling of candidates who hope to step from the senate into the White House.

Senator Steiwer, Republican, of Oregon, chairman, first announced the committee would investigate all presidential campaign expenditures, and that the inquiry would be impartial.

Senator Charles Curtis, Republican, of Kansas, reported the highest expenditure among the eight candidates heard. His expense to date totalled $11,068.67. Of the other candidates testifying, Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, has spent 50; Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, nothing; Senator George, Democrat, of Georgia, $75; Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, $1,075; Senator Goff, Republican, of West Virginia, $60; Ex-Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, $1,744.85; and Representative Hull, Democrat, of Tennessee, less than $1,000.

There were many interesting bits of testimony. Senator Norris declared he wasn't even interested in his own candidacy or his prospects of winning the Republican nomination.

Curtis revealed his pre-convention strategy was to fight for uninstructed delegations from contested states.

No Funds, Borah Says

Senator Borah reported he had no campaign fund at all. He denied being a candidate even though he has the Idaho vote. Senator George intimated he might not even attend the Houston convention while Goff protested vigorously against being termed a "stalking horse" candidate.

Senator Walsh, the Senate's famous oil prosecutor, denied getting any contributions from oil companies. Hitchcock predicted that half his instructed delegates would vote in the end for Governor Al Smith of New York, and Hull revealed his only campaign activity was to answer letters.

CHURCHES URGE ORGANIZATION OF COAL FIELDS

Unsatisfactory Economic Situation of Industry Cited in Report

CONDEMNS VIOLENCE

Declares Right of Workers To Organize and Bargain Collectively

New York, May 7—Abandonment by both operators and mine workers in the strike-ridden bituminous coal fields of "belligerent and oppressive tactics," and the reestablishment of orderly industrial relations are recommended in a lengthy report issued today by the department of research and education of the Federal Council of Churches.

The report emphasized the "unsatisfactory economic situation of the industry" and:

Condemns the use of violence.

Says the eviction of mine workers' families from company houses "indicates a wholly unsound social situation."

Declares that the use of injunctions in labor disputes has been "carried to absurd lengths."

Result of Investigation

Advocates a frank presentation by the operators of the financial data upon which they base their contention that the union scale is prohibitive.

The report contains the findings of the church organization as the result of an investigation conducted during the past few months at the request of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches. The investigation was made in the coal fields of western Pennsylvania.

Stressing the unsatisfactory economic situation in the industry, the report makes these statements:

"Here is a seriously overdeveloped industry, with more mines and more labor than the demand justifies, divided into sharply competitive units, and subject to influences that tend to limit its market. Until the fundamental ills of the industry, treated as a whole, are grappled with successfully either by the industry itself or by the government, or both, preoccupation with the humanitarian phases of the problem can accomplish little of a constructive nature."

Violence Deplored

The use of violence is deplored in these words: "However great the provocation, the beating up of men who

Stroke of Apoplexy Caused Death of Joseph Debarthe, Physicians Say

Remaining unconscious for 14 hours after a stroke of apoplexy caused him to fall down a flight of stairs at the Marion Hotel, Joseph DeBarthe, 60, died at City Hospital Sunday morning at 2 o'clock.

She told of organizing the college of home economics at Syracuse University and of her work at that institution.

P. C. Dugan, Mrs. Knapp's counsel, led her along to the beginning of the census. She said she had made many census appointments which came to her through "political channels."

THREE HURT AS CAR CRASHES INTO BUILDING

Runaway Machine Figures in Mixup at Prospect and Center-sts

OHIO TOLL HEAVY

Seven Killed in Traffic Throughout State; Six Cars Damaged Here

Six automobiles, four injured persons, a bank building, a traffic car and a concrete mailbox post all figured in Marion's week-end traffic mishaps.

Although one accident here resulted in minor injury to three persons, local traffic mishaps were of slight importance in comparison with those in other sections of the state. The traffic toll for the week-end in the state was seven killed and two seriously injured. With three killed, Cincinnati led all other cities of the state in the number of fatal accidents.

Crashes Into Building

Three persons received minor injuries, a concrete mail box post was broken off and a large piece broken out of the stone corner of the Citizens' Building & Loan Co. building at W. Center and Prospect sts, late Saturday afternoon when a Buick Master six coach driven by Miss Mildred Kerr, N. Main st, got out of control and swerved across the sidewalk.

John Brun, 257 N. Greenwood st, who received a scalp wound and numerous bruises, was the most seriously injured of the three. He was going to the office of Dr. A. A. Starner in the Citizens' Loan Co. building, where his injuries were dressed. Harry Bailey, 276 Cassaway and Lowell Williams, of Claridon, were thrown to the sidewalk when hit by the car, but escaped with minor bruises and cuts.

Miss Kerr and Donald Shumaker, 587 N. Main st, who was also in the car, were taken to police headquarters following the accident, but were released when Miss Kerr explained the accident was caused by the unexpected of the machine sticking.

Officer's Story

Patrolman John Wrenn, who was at the southeast corner of Center and Prospect sts, said the Buick driven by Miss Kerr was going south on Prospect st, and came to a stop at the intersection, waiting for the signal to turn east. As the green light flashed he said he heard Shumaker tell Miss Kerr to "step on it." The car Wrenn says, then shot forward but instead of going east, turned northand traveling at a high rate speed, headed for the Citizens' bank building.

Breaking off the concrete mail box post, the car continued across the sidewalk and after hurling the three occupants

Baseball Season Opens With Victory Over Springfiel

May Hold Legion Sub-District Tournament In Mario

Eagles Go Good In Winning, 4-1

Airtight Support of Fast Pitching Brings Home Bacon; 300 Brave Chill Winds To Witness Opener; House of David Team Plays Here Sunday

BY KARL R. M'ELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

AIRTIGHT pitching backed by almost perfect fielding gave the Marion Eagles their first baseball victory Sunday afternoon at Lincoln Park when they defeated the Springfield Kibler Clothiers, 4 to 1.

A chill wind swept across the newly ploughed and scraped diamonds as the local aggregation officially opened the summer sports season in Marion. A total of slightly more than 300 fans braved the cold to see their representative team crash through with a well earned victory.

In spite of the fact that but one real practice session was indulged in the pre-season workouts, the local tossers made but one error, which, by the whim of the scorer, could have been called either way.

Start Game Fast

Springfield started the contest with a burst of speed that threatened to make them mighty tough for the Marion team to handle. After getting the leadoff man on an easy out, Kinsler singled through short for the first hit of the game. He was advanced to second by Gordon's hit over second.

McCarty smacked a hard grounder to Buckland who picked off Gordon at second with Bacon making the putout. On the play Kinsler scored. That was the only time a Springfield player was to cross home plate and as a matter of fact third base.

The Eagles were shut out in the first inning after Rowan, leadoff man, walked and was sacrificed to second by Buckland. On a fly to left field, Rowan was caught between home and third.

Comes to Own

After the first inning E. Stull took complete control of the game and it was just one, two, three for the Kibler Clothiers. Only once did more than three batters face him in the eight innings.

Marion tied up the game in the second stanza when C. Stull scored with one down. Bacon opened the inning with a single to center. He was caught at second by Stull's grounder with the latter being safe at first. Strawser, a newcomer in Marion baseball circles, crashed out a two bagger into right field taking third on Wolbert's fumble of the pickup. Mays walked and E. Stull grounded out to first with Strawser being caught at the plate.

Both teams battled at an even pace until the sixth inning when the Eagles with two men down took advantage of Lockninski's wildness to run across a pair of runs.

Bacon Starts It

Bacon started the ball rolling again when he walked and stole second. C. Stull was hit by a pitched ball and Strawser filled the bases with a single between short and third with Bacon being held up at third. Mays pulled the same out of the fire with a drive into deep center that scored both Bacon and Stull.

With three men on in the seventh, Lockninski pulled himself out of a hole when Bacon fouled out and C. Stull hit and easy pop to short. In the eighth the final run was scored after Sacksteder swatted a two-bagger into center scoring on Aiple's wobble on E. Stull's grounder.

Next Sunday the Eagles will play one of the toughest teams now on the road in the famous House of David team. This game will be the first of a series of real good aggregations that are to be exhibited on the local diamonds.

Billings Is Touched for Two Hits; Reds Take Second

New York, May 7—Haskell Billings, youthful pitching sensation of the Detroit Tigers, would have a no-hit game to his credit today if Buddy Meyer had been kept out of the Red Sox line-up yesterday. The Boston team got only two hits off Billings, and Myer made both of them. Detroit touched Settlemire and Bradley for only six hits but got the verdict of a 3 to 0 score.

The St. Louis club, alias Samuel Gray, nosed out Washington in the eleventh, 7 to 6. Gray has accounted for six of the Brown's 13 victories.

KENTON COUPLE TELL CONFLICTING STORIES

Wounded Negro Insists Wife Shot Him; Woman Enters Denial

Kenton, May 7—M. F. Henry, 67-year-old negro janitor, who lies in Antonio hospital here with bullet wounds in his chest, lung and hip, still insisted today that his wife, Jennie, shot him with a 38-calibre revolver as he lay sleeping in their home on East North-st.

Questioned repeatedly Saturday in the detention room at the county jail where she is being held, the wife denied the charge, declaring with equal insistence that the husband turned the revolver on himself after having fired two shots at her as she ran from the home.

Henry, she said, threatened just before the shooting to kill her and then end his own life. They had quarreled, she continued, when her husband objected to her calling a physician when his nose started bleeding.

Prosecutor Loucks B. Brown, investigating the near tragedy with the assistance of Deputy Sheriff Waldo Haudenschild, said charges of shooting with intent to kill would likely be filed against Mrs. Henry today.

WINS PENNANT IN TRACK MEET

Marysville Cops Third Tecumseh League Trophy; Heavy Track Slows Speed

Marysville May 7—Marysville High School won its third Tecumseh League championship of the 1927-28 school when the school's track squad defeated five other teams entered in the track and field at the fairgrounds here. The meet was the first to be held in the league and London, Urbana, Bellefontaine and Marysville took part.

Of the 95 possible points, Marysville scored 40½; Urbana 31 2-3; Bellefontaine, 15 1-3 and London, 7½. Because of a heavy rain Saturday morning, the track was heavy and consequently slower time was made in the running, jumping and pole vaulting events than would be the case under more favorable conditions.

The points made were as follows:

School	1st	2nd.	3rd.
Marysville	4	6	2 1-2
Urbana	5	1	3 2-3
Bellefontaine	2	1	2 2-3
London	0	2	1 1-2

First place five points; second, three points, and third one point. The fraction of points came as a result of ties.

Tie for Place

Marysville and London tied for third place when Bergantino, of Marysville, and Thomas of London, each leaped the same distance for third place in the running broad jump. In the high jump, Mills and Wilcox, of Marysville, each jumped the same height and gave Marysville first and second in the event. Webster, of Bellefontaine, and Murphy and Hendrickson, of Urbana, all three tied for lower mark than that made by the two Marysville trackmen and the point for third place was divided into thirds, Urbana getting two-thirds and Bellefontaine one-third.

Following are the scores made on the various events:

100 yard dash, Scott, of Urbana, time 11 3-4; pole vault, Wilcox, Marysville 10 feet; 220 yard dash, Buckney, of Urbana, 25 1-4; discus Webster, of Bellefontaine, 94 feet; running broad jump, Hitt, of Urbana, 20 feet 6 inches; 440-yard dash, Brown, of Marysville, 8 feet 8 inches; shot put, Webster, of Bellefontaine, 34 feet 7 inches; 880 yard dash, Hendrickson, of Urbana, 2:16; high jump, Mills and Wilcox, Marysville, 5 feet 6 inches; mile relay won by Murphy, Scott, Buckney and Hitt, of Urbana.

Loses to Baseball

Bellefontaine had the largest squad entered, 26 men. Urbana was next with 20 and Marysville and London each had 17. Burkehalter, of Heidelberg, was the starter and Matheny, of Columbus, was judge.

Although winning three Tecumseh League pennants this year, Marysville was unable to annex the fourth in baseball. In the baseball schedule of the league, Marysville did not win a single game. The remaining three teams, Bellefontaine, London and Urbana, are tied for first place. The play-off will be held this week.

THE funeral, in character, thought and purpose, becomes your bestowal of final care and kindliness, the last practical evidence of your love and respect: more than just alone a necessary procedure. That is the high ideal to which we adhere in the funeral service we offer. That, too, should be your ideal. That too should be your entire reason for preferably engaging our funeral service. And despite our higher standard of practices and perfect fulfillment in every detail, our charges are reasonably moderate. Our every feature is of greater advantage to those who choose us when the need for a mortician arises.

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

New York, May 7—The momentum generated by General Motors, Radio and a few other speculative favorites in the New York Stock Market last week was sufficient to push the leaders to new high price levels in a fast and furious trading on the big board today.

Responding to the huge accumulation of week-end buying orders after the double holiday, numerous stocks started the new week at prices from two to nine points higher than at last week's close. General Motors jumped into the limelight when a block of 8,300 shares sold at 210, as compared with Friday's close at 204 3-4, and Radio opened the week at 191 against 182 1-4. The Airplane stocks gave another demonstration of their ability to soar to new high price levels, and American Can, was an impressive ground gainer in the old line industrials.

In some cases, notably that of Freeport Texas Corporation, the shrinkage of earnings has come as a surprise and a shock to the speculative district, resulting in a sharp decline in the prices of their stocks.

At 210, General Motors was within 15 points of the goal of 225 set some time ago by boosters of the stock.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, May 7—The most important incident of this week in the grain market will come on Wednesday after the close of the session at the Board of Trade—the receipt from Washington of the government crop report estimating the condition of the Winter wheat crop as of May 1.

Already private crop reporters have had their guess on this vital question. On May 1 they issued their estimates. Their average placed the crop at 474,000,000 bu.

That was last Tuesday. The day before May wheat had sold at its high point, $1.71½. The big break, continuing four days, carried May wheat down to a low on Friday of $1.54. From there it rallied to $1.60⅝ on Saturday and closed at $1.60¼@1.60½.

A break of 17½ cents, in other words, has been followed by a reaction of 6⅝.

It is because of the big break, more than anything else, that the wheat market situation looks strong again. Longs were driven out. If the fundamental conditions are as bullish as they were supposed to be before the private reports were issued, what is the likely course of the market from here?

Are those conditions that bullish?

Apparently they are. The government report ought to tell. That report is likely, in this writer's opinion, to forecast a smaller yield than the acreage of the private estimaters.

As Jake Schreiner puts it:

"The big damage has been done to Winter wheat by Winter killing. All the rain in the world cannot make up for abandoned acreage. There has been rain and the market has had a big break. No longer for a time, will the holder of wheat be afraid that reports of rain will cause a decline.

"One of the most bullish things in the market, as I see it, is that where the crop is best is in the northwestern and Pacific coast states, and where it is worst is east of the Mississippi. That western wheat does not affect our market much more than if it were in Canada. It leaks out of the country through Pacific coast ports. Often it is not even hedged in the Chicago futures market.

"The wheat closest to us is the wheat most badly injured, and this fact, I think, emphasizes the bullishness of the short crop."

But the most intensely bullish possibility in wheat is that the total crop in the United States this year will be reduced to a point that will put this country on a domestic basis. Suppose that the Winter wheat crop is no more than 474,000,000 bushels. Suppose we have as big a Spring wheat crop as last year, when it was more than 100,000,000 bushels larger than in 1926.

This big Spring crop last year was 319,000,000 bu. If this country raises that much this year it will have a total crop of 793,000,000 bu.

Domestic requirements are estimated at 625,000,000 bu. This would leave only 161,000,000 bu. as an exportable surplus for the next cereal year beginning July 1. Up to April 1 in the present year we had exported 179,701,000 bu. No account is taken of carryovers because that seems unnecessary in this computation.

Obviously, if next year's exports should be as heavy, this country would be forced upon a domestic basis. That means the effect of our tariff of more than 42 cents a bushel on wheat would assert itself. Under such circumstances wheat in this country would have an economic basis for selling at more than 42c a bushel above the world's parity.

The MILEAGE SOMEONE ELSE WASTES IS SAVED FOR YOU TO USE

Because an automobile has served an owner faithfully and honestly for a couple of years does not imply that it should be cast aside.

Absolutely NOT.

Such cars when traded in, properly overhauled, and refinished, represent thousands of miles of service for someone.

A visit to the used car showroom of local dealers will convince you—

And just figure in cold dollars and cents that, because of lower first cost, the mileage you buy in a good used car is an economy.

Buy "Miles per Dollar—Not Miles per Gallon."

FOUR ARE KILLED IN FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT

Guns Blaze Forth on Kentucky Dance Floor; Two Near Death

Martin, Ky., May 7—Four persons are dead today, two believed fatally injured and two suffering lesser injuries as the result of a pistol battle in a dance hall at Ligon, Floyd County, Saturday night.

The dead: P. L. Napier; Milford Newsome; C. Reynolds; James Bush.

Alexander Newsome, father of one of the dead men, and a man named McCann were near death in a Martin, Kentucky, hospital today.

Among those in the hospital with lesser injuries, and who will recover, were Jarrey Newsome and Huey Gibson. Several others were slightly injured by the flying bullets.

The shooting started, according to the sheriff's office, when Huey Gibson, a constable, and James Bush attempted to evict Milford Gibson from the dance hall for failure to pay his way into the crowded dance hall. They seized Gibson and were attempting to take him from the floor when a shot was fired and Bush fell dead. A free-for-all shooting scrape followed and three others fell dead and four were wounded.

The two-story frame residence owned by Mrs. William Shirea, in LaRue, and a barn on the farm of Lester Allen south of the village were destroyed by fire over the week-end. Mrs. Shirea, who is ill, was carried from the home by neighbors.

The Shirea home, which is valued at $5,500, caught fire from sparks blown from a fire in a small outbuilding 500 feet away, and owned by Mrs. Anna Johnson. The barn belonging to Mr. Allen is valued at $1,500.

Everyone is a slave to something but only in a few instances is much harm done.

GIVES THIRD SERMON OF PARABLE SERIES

Calvary Pastor Talks on "The Mustard Seed and the Leaven"

Third of a series of sermons on the Seven Parables was given by Rev. E. Radebaugh, pastor, at services last night at Calvary Evangelical Church. His subject was "The Mustard Seed and the Leaven". His sermon next Sunday night will be on the "Hidden Treasure, the Drgaunt and the Mer Chantman."

"The mustard seed, contrary to intention, grew until it became a tree and the birds roosted in its branches. In the parable the field is the world and the seed the little things that creep in to corrupt it, which at first are not intended to amount to much but gradually grow until they overpower. Leaven is a type of evil and has been used as much all through God's Word. In the Old Testament the bread used in sacrificial feasts was the unleavened bread, leaven being so corrupt as to be put away from everything intended to typify Christ."

"The only thing that will arrest the power of leaven in the dough is heat and there is nothing that will arrest the leaven of sin in the world except the Holy Spirit."

ROBBER SUSPECT IS HELD AFTER BATTLE

Owner of Restaurant Wounds Would-Be Bandit at Toledo

Toledo, May 7—Mrs. Mary Crawford, 28, was in Mercy Hospital recovering from a bullet wound in her right leg and an unidentified robber suspect was the object of police grilling here today following the unsuccessful attempt of a lone bandit to "stick-up" the Barbecue Inn yesterday.

Mrs. Crawford, a waitress in the restaurant, was wounded during an exchange of shots between the bandit and Frank Phillips, proprietor of the inn, which ensued when the bandit entered the eating house and demanded that Phillips elevate his hands.

Phillips, who but a few minutes before had remarked that he was ready for any robbers who might attempt "to hold me up," instead of complying with the bandit's demand, whipped out a revolver from under counter. The hold-up man immediately opened fire to which Phillips replied, driving the bandit before him. Losing his nerve, the bandit fled through the door and down the street outdistancing Phillips who pursued him, still firing.

The suspect, who is being held for further investigation and treatment at St. Vincent's Hospital here, gave the name of Jack Roberts, 19, no address. He was taken into custody following his appearance at the home of Mrs. James Davis, this city, weak from loss of blood—the result of a bullet wound which he has as yet failed to satisfactorily explain, police say.

An automatic which police claim was used in the holdup was found by patrolmen in the rear of a home here. Three shells had jammed in the barrel of the pistol, according to police.

ANSWER AND CROSS PETITION ARE FILED

A. S. Herr Seeks $21.75 Judgment from Milo H. Poorman

Answer and cross petition in which the defendant asks for judgment of $21.75 against the plaintiff, Milo H. Poorman has been filed in Common Pleas Court by A. Stanley Herr.

The defendant states in his cross petition that he and the plaintiff entered into an oral agreement whereby Poorman was to work on an automobile mechanic in a garage operated by the defendant and that the mechanic was to receive two-thirds of the proceeds.

After working for a week the petition states, Poorman quit and refused to make a settlement of $62.25 which were the proceeds for the week.

Poorman in his petition sought a judgment of $75 for equipment and tools which were being held by the defendant, which the defendant claims were to be held until a settlement of the week's proceeds was made.

W. N. Harder is attorney for the plaintiff. J. D. Williamson represents the defendant.

"Looks Like Horseplay"

A horse which, according to the defendant, was bought sight-unseen figures in a suit in Common Pleas Court between Charles M. Cookston, plaintiff, and Walter Jones, defendant. Answer to the plaintiff's petition was filed with the Clerk of Courts this morning.

The defendant claims that he bought the horse for use in a coal mine, depending on the plaintiff's description that the horse was suitable built for that purpose. Upon delivery of the horse, he claims, he found that it was not suitable for work in a coal mine and that it was not as described by the plaintiff.

Cookston, the answer states, refused to allow the horse to be returned. Jones then had the horse sold through a Columbus commission house and sent the check for $42 mailed to the plaintiff. The check was also refused and Cookston started suit in Common Pleas Court to get a judgment of $140 against Jones.

Mouser, Young & Mouser represent the plaintiff. Carhart & Wertz represent the defendant.

AUTO KILLS FRENCHMAN SHOT BY FIRING SQUAD

Paris—Edmund Augier, the only polit who ever survived "execution" was killed in an automobile accident.

On Aug. 24, 1925, Augier, then 22 years old, was captured after a skirmish in which he killed two Germans at Givonne, Belgium. He was lined up with ten other prisoners before a firing squad, but eight bullets failed to kill him.

After a year of imprisonment Augier was sent back to France in exchange of prisoners. Since the war he has been a traveling salesman. While driving into Paris at seventy miles an hour Augier's car crashed into a tree. The ex-poilu was killed instantly.

Marion Civil War Veteran Relates Interesting Details of Sherman's Historic "March to Sea"

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of accounts relating to the experiences of Marion's Civil War veterans, representatives of what is now reverently referred to as "The Fading Line of Blue."

By MALLIE HOUCK

"I VOTED for Lincoln in Atlanta before I was 21," is one of the reminiscences related with evident pride by Michael Click, 84-year-old veteran of the Civil War, in commenting upon his experiences during those stirring times in the 60's.

"Any one excepting a soldier had to be 21 but a man wearing a uniform could vote regardless of his age," the Marion veteran states by way of explanation.

Mr. Click's eyes convey an expression of sadness as he recalls the bitter persecutions experienced by the martyred wartime president.

"If you remember how no one understood Christ, how some even threw stones at Him and cursed Him, you can in some measure understand what Lincoln had to go through," the Union veteran says. "And again, like Christ, his worth was not fully appreciated until it was too late to make amends. Although he was a great and good man. I'll never forget the old top hat he wore. It was such a dusty, wornout hat."

Tales of Famous March

Mr. Click, whose home is on S. Vine st, shatters an impression of long-standing regarding Sherman and his famous march to the sea.

"We were given strict orders not to enter a house on that march," he relates. "We were permitted to get what we could from the fields, but no one was even to think of molesting a house and its occupants. Of course, some of them did—just couldn't be controlled—and that's how those stories of Sherman's ruthlessness and cruelty got started."

The only place that Sherman allowed men to "go the limit" was in South Carolina, Mr. Click recalls.

"And why shouldn't he?" queries the veteran. "Didn't that state start all the trouble? But it was a terrible thing. At night a beautiful old southern mansion, well kept grounds and outhouses, lay before the men, but in the morning nothing but a dismal unbroken view of the surrounding territory met the eye. South Carolina was literally 'burned to the ground,' leveled by the fires that burned in the hearts and torches of the Union men."

Joins Force at 21

Mr. Click joined Sherman's army when he was 21 and was in the march all the way to Savannah, which he terms, "the most beautiful city in the South."

According to the record kept by the Marion veteran, on the 200-mile stretch from Atlanta to Savannah, Sherman and his men marched 100 miles or more. He explains this by the way attacks and maneuvers were made.

The army couldn't march together, for, as Mr. Click relates, "There never was enough provisions for all of us," and so, after a battle, the troops would spread out over an area of 25 miles or more, thus providing basis for what historians describe as a march cutting a "25-mile swath over land to the sea."

When a battle was foreseen, the army would concentrate, win the fray and then spread out again until another call for conflict was sounded.

Mr. Click was in the 69th Ohio Volunteer Infantry on his march with Sherman but at Gettysburg was with the 82nd O. V. I.

Plenty of "Music"

"Four bullets went through my clothes in one day, and how many zipped past my ears, I don't know," he recalls.

Some exceptionally interesting bits of data are found in information furnished by this veteran. Many persons have wondered why only men with good teeth were wanted in the army. Mr. Click has one of the answers in evidence provided by some of the relics which he brought home from the war.

Small sacks of powder were wrapped around the tops of the shells and these were bitten off and rammed into the gun before shooting in the bullet.

"When a man was in a hard battle, he had to be sure every time he bit a sack of powder that it would come off, and that's one reason why the government wanted men with sound teeth," Mr. Click states.

Perhaps some of the older Marion residents remember John Magruder. He made Mr. Click's haversack and it was one of the best in the service, the man who used it declares. It withstood rain, snow, sleet and all of the other devastating elements to which a rations pack was subjected in Civil War campaigning, and finally the back, where it was carried against the body, just naturally wore out.

The Marion soldier's bayonet is a blunt-edged piece of steel, not like the sharp, keen bayonets used in the World War.

Religion Helps Him

Michael Click found religious faith and devotion a great help throughout his campaigning.

"Nights when my comrades played cards and had a hilarious time, I read my testament before the camp fires, and every night and morning I prayed," he says. "It is a comfort to know that there is a just God."

It was when his company was stationed in the heart of Savannah for a time that the Marion soldier learned from actual experience what it was to be hungry. Out in the harbor, ships laden with provisions were cruising around but the food could not be delivered until rebels who were between the Union men and the sea could be driven away.

Every day during the war Mr. Click kept an accurate diary of what he did and what was going on along the lines. These notes he sent back to his mother. Unfortunately for history, the notes were destroyed or lost in the transfer of property and only one sheet remains. This single remnant, now faded, is in hand-writing of exceptional fineness.

The portfolio which Mr. Click carried during the war is still in good condition.

It was such a difficult task to keep stamps fit for use while in the possession of soldiers at the front that the government finally ordered troops to stop using stamps, those who received the letters paying the postage.

Notable Spectacle

The grand review of Union troops in Washington a few weeks after the war ended was a marvelous spectacle, Mr. Click relates. Officers, from generals on down, worked painstakingly to have their forces in prime condition for the demonstration and the result was an outpouring of soldiery with few equals in history.

And Mr. Click is especially proud as he recounts how the 69th O. V. I. walked away with honors that day. The officers had worked long and zealously to put up a smart appearance and every gun shone, every uniform was clean and pressed and the mules were packed, as if ready for entrance into battle. This last feature in particular, showing readiness of the command for conflict, was what caught the eyes of the people and the judges.

Michael Click was born in 1841 in Pleasant township and has spent most of his life in Marion County. He was married on Oct. 22, 1868, and is the father of nine children.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN PLAN FOR MEETING

Galion Woman Named on One of Committees for Annual Event in Columbus

Four committees which will have charge of details in connection with the annual meeting of the Ohio Council of Republican Women to be held in Columbus, Wednesday and Thursday, were announced today by Mrs. Wilma Sinclair Levan of Steubenville, president of the organization. Included in the list is Mrs. Earl B. Padgett of Galion as a member of the tellers' committee.

Delegates who will represent the Marion County Chapter of the Council will be named at a meeting of the local organization to be held Tuesday afternoon in the Common Pleas courtroom here.

The meeting of the Marion County chapter is to be the first held since the organization was effected here several weeks ago.

DARROW RETURNS HOME, DEFENDS JAMES MUNSENE

Jefferson, May 7—Clarence Darrow, famous Chicago criminal lawyer, today was to re-enter court after a long absence. He is to defend James Munsene, alleged bootlegger of Trumbull County, Darrow's home territory.

While Darrow's name will go on the records in the local court as "chief of defense counsel," it is largely a "homecoming" for the veteran attorney. A few months ago, when visiting his birthplace at Kinsman, near here, Darrow expressed a desire to win a lawsuit in his old haunts. Munsene's trial coming into the limelight at the time, Attorney Francis W. Poulson, Cleveland, chief defense lawyer for Velma West, confessed hammer-slayer, and Attorney H. A. Burgess, Warren, persuaded Darrow to lead them in a fight for Munsene.

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator

There isn't a bit of exposed machinery in the General Electric Refrigerator. It's all sealed inside one air-tight steel casing—mounted on top of the cabinet. There isn't any mechanism under the box, inside it—or down in the basement.

To such remarkable simplicity have the engineers of General Electric brought the domestic refrigerator. For fifteen years they worked. They built thousands of refrigerators. Tested them in the laboratory and in homes. Changed them, improved them, perfected them . . . until this final example of simplicity and efficiency was evolved. It was primarily an electrical problem. And so it was solved, as one would expect, by the world's outstanding group of electrical engineers and scientists.

You are cordially invited to come in today and study the many models. Notice how quietly they operate. How roomy and strong the cabinets are. Remember, too, that they use very little current to make all the ice you need and keep the temperature always below the 50° danger point.

Changing Times—Changing Costs

A few years ago you bought a dozen oranges and paid only about twenty cents for them. Today four oranges cost you the same amount.

You think nothing of the difference in price, although the product is identical. You recognize that changing times bring changing costs.

Gas is no different than other commodities—yet gas remains the same price.

Today it costs much more to bring gas to Marion than it did when oranges sold for twenty cents a dozen.

But gas is also worth more to Marion today—for only with an unfailing gas supply can the city attract new industries and hold what is here.

Marion is asked to face not a fancy but a fact, recognizing for the city's industrial welfare that turn engagement of one of the most popular entertainers ever to appear here on the high school lecture course program, Zellmer, a pro-cean characterist.

Two of the series will be musical, the concert program of the Schubert Male Quartet, and a famous band of Budapest gypsies, known as the "Royal Gypsies."

"Lightin'" Booked

The other two numbers are a play, "Lightnin'" to be presented by the Sprague Players and the lecture of Low R. Sarett, woodsman.

Dates of presentation of the various numbers, to be given during the fall months, will be announced later by the three companies from whom they were selected. Tickets will be sold at two dollars for all six numbers, including reserved seats.

The feature of the entire program will be Count Luckner's lecture—his own story told by himself. Count Luckner's amazing life harks back to the days of the Elizabethan freebooters and reached a climax during the World War. He ran the triple blockade of the Allies during a hurricane, roamed the southern seas in his "Ghost Ship," sank 14 allied boats, captured hundreds of prisoners, fed them champagne and cake and never killed anyone. His adventures are told in Lowell Thomas' book, "The Sea Devil," one of America's best-sellers at the present time.

Zellmer, the characterist, needs no introduction his entertainment having born one of the most enthusiastic received of the numbers of the local course during the winter of 1926-27.

To Present Program

The Schubert Male Quartet will present a program of high artistic attainment with an incidental series of musical pictures from the life and works of Franz Schubert. The group includes George O. Miner, basso and director, Arthur Barwell, first tenor, Rance Quarington, second tenor, Ernest Morgan, baritone, and Christine B. Cochrane, violin and piano. The group was featured during the 1925-26 season with Paul Ruben's musical comedy, "Three Little Maids" in its transcontinental tour of Canada.

The play "Lightin'" will be presented by the Sprague Players, famous for their interpretation of "Rip Van Winkle" in which Herbert Sprague played the leading role.

"The Royal Gypsies" is a group of six artist-players, whose instrumentation will feature cymbalom, two violins, viola, clarinet and bass viol. They will present Gypsy melodies.

Low R. Sarett's talk will have to deal with his 10 years experience in the pathless Canadian forest. Dr. Sarett's work in the great woods furnished the money for his education at Beloit College, the law school of the University of Illinois and for post graduate work at Harvard and Michigan Universities. He is at the present time head of the Department of Public Speaking of the University of Illinois.

HEALTH BETTER VERY SOON AFTER HE GOT KONJOLA

Another Ohio Citizen Relieved of Years of Suffering By This New Compound.

MR. WALTER KIRKPATRICK

"My health improved very quickly when I started taking Konjola and my whole system was benefited," said Mr. Walter Kirkpatrick, 254 North Fifth-st., Steubenville, Ohio.

"I suffered three years with stomach and kidney trouble. After every meal I bloated up with gas and the pains in my chest were terrible. Food always formed a heavy lump in my stomach and the indigestion pains nearly doubled me up. My kidneys were so disordered that I suffered miseries with pains in my back. I would have to rise several times every night. I was generally rundown and I was steadily losing weight and strength.

"I saw the testimonials of Konjola in the papers and decided to give this medicine a trial. Before the first bottle was gone the stomach trouble had almost completely disappeared. Now I can eat anything that I want without suffering from gas or bloating spells. That heavy lump in my stomach never comes over me and the indigestion pains are gone. My kidneys are so much stronger I never have to rise during the night and the pains in my sides have vanished. I owe all my new health to Konjola and want to indorse it to others."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical preparation until now Konjola is the most talked indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Brainy & Co. Pharmacy and in other leading stores in the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

MARION'S FLORIDA VISITORS RETURNING

More Than 30 from Here Conclude Winter Sojourn at St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Fla., May 7—More than 30 Marion residents were winter visitors in St. Petersburg, the "Sunshine City," during the season now drawing to a close. Of that number, most of the Marion tourists returned to their northern homes by automobile and rail, planning to come back here in the early fall to remain through the cold months.

Every record made in previous years was shattered by the great influx of "summerskippers" who came here this season, representing every state in the Union, and many of the Canadian provinces, totaling over 200,000. The recreational and social events held in season out-shone anything staged here in the past.

Included among the Marion residents who sojourned here were Mrs. Edna Apt, Mrs. Agnes Bain, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brumbaugh, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bain, Mrs. Minnie A. Foster, Mrs. E. Furstenberger, Mrs. W. E. Haskin, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hone-

With the concert tonight, the third of the season they will bring to a close their program for the year, disbanding for the summer months.

Organized in 1923

The club was organized in September, 1923, under direction of a committee comprised of Ernst C. Carl, director, C. L. Collmer, W. A. MacDonald and R. S. Kinney. They made their first public appearance at the Marion Country Club in 1923 as a part of a program presented by the Marion Lecture-Recital Club. Their first concert was at Central Junior High School in December of the same year.

WISCONSIN GOVERNOR URGES FLIERS' VISIT

Makes Trip from Madison to New York To Meet Airmen

New York, May 7—Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman of Wisconsin, who hastened here by airplane, today had an appointment with the Bremen fliers to urge their making a visit to Madison, capital of his state, in the American tour which the aviators begin Wednesday.

It is one of many pleas pouring in upon Baron Von Huenefeld, Major Fitzmaurice and Captain Koehl to expand their itinerary beyond its scheduled 14 days.

The ship in which the mid-westerners flew to New York was undergoing repairs at Mitchel Field. A storm forced it down Saturday night at Selinsgrove, Pa., where Governor Zimmerman dedicated a new airport.

Today holds no let down in the matter of affairs in the fliers' honor. They were to lunch at the Astor as guests of the German-American Chamber of Commerce. The friendly sons of St. Patrick will hold a reception for them at the Astor tonight.

Attend Services

Major Fitzmaurice and Captain Koehl attended Sunday mass at St. Agnes Church. The Baron and Mrs. Koehl went to St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church.

In a Junkers monoplane, similar to the one in which they flew from Ireland to Greenely Island, the fliers will hop first to Philadelphia. Their tour will take them as far west as Chicago and St. Louis.

The wives of Major Fitzmaurice and Captain Koehl will remain in New York during the good will tour.

Canadian cities will be visited by the fliers, in appreciation of the hospitality and cooperation accorded them at Greenely Island. They will return to this city May 23.

Itinerary Planned

Their itinerary follows:

Wednesday, May 9—Leave Curtiss Field for Philadelphia.

Thursday, May 10—Leave Philadelphia, Pa., for Cleveland; leave Cleveland for Chicago.

Friday, May 11—In Chicago.

Saturday, May 12—In Chicago.

Sunday, May 13—Leave Chicago for Milwaukee.

FARM BLOC ACTION MUDDLES TAX FIGHT

Would Attach Rider to Measure Authorizing "Bonus" to Farmers

Washington, May 7—The tax reduction in the Senate was muddled today by action of the western Farm bloc seeking a farm relief and tariff revision consideration of the new McMaster, Republican of South Dakota, sponsored a rider to the bill which would authorize the use of customs receipts in paying a "bonus" on export of surplus farm products. The bonus would be equal to the transportation cost of shipping the surplus products from a "primary market," usually farms, to the nearest overseas market, commonly called a "deficit area," would enable the farmer to receive the entire export sale price, instead of having to pay freight charges to the seaport.

A question was raised by Senator Simmons in proposing to pay the bonus from customs receipts. Under the plan, the farmer would be repaid on his export freight costs from moneys collected on imported products coming under the tariff.

The battle meanwhile entered a new stage. All administrative features awaiting approval, were submitted to controversy. After these are disposed of the question of rates will be reached and the big fight opened. Democratic leaders will insist upon a substantial slash in rates while the Republican forces will contend for the $225,000,000. The difference between the plans rested chiefly in the relief offered corporations under the Democratic plan, particularly in the capital stock provisions.

REORGANIZATION OF COAL FIELDS URGED

Unsatisfactory Economic Situation of Industry Cited in Report

[illegible] the positions of those on the picket lines in vigorous practice. The report says these brutal demonstrations are not unauthorized by the responsible officials of the union is only a partial defense. The conduct of the union imposes a heavy responsibility in the matter of discipline."

Even stronger language is used in connection with police violence: "In emergencies when legal sanction the coal and railroad companies incur a moral obligation not to divert the processes of orderly government to private ends. It is almost impossible to overestimate the gravity of a time of industrial crisis when officers of the peace are found on the payrolls of industrial operators. This practice does not become salutary by virtue of legality or custom."

Referring to bitterness caused by the coal investigations, the report says:

"When a corporation seeks and a court grants an injunction restraining a union not only from acts which are illegal and wrong in themselves but from ordinary routine activities, such as the peaceful recruiting of members or the distributing of relief funds in time of strike the social effects are bound to be serious. The same is true when the injunction is used to protect an industrial contract that is contrary to the workers legitimate interest."

Right To Organize

Workers should have the right to organize and bargain collectively, the report declares, adding that "the employer should be brought to a realization of the need of conceding that right as a means of eliminating cut-throat competition."

The position of the United Mine Workers is described as "very difficult" since their strategy has been "directed toward holding the Jacksonville wage scale for the union fields as a whole."

"They (the union leaders) contend," the report points out, "that if they accept a reduction in the interest of the operators they have no assurance against recurring reductions and a progressive lowering of their standard of living because of the continuing competition of the non-union fields.

"On the other hand insistence upon the Jacksonville scale, if we may judge on the basis of the financial data available, puts the operators in the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields in an impossible position in view of the active competition of the southern fields.

Suggests Co-Operation

"It unfortunately appears that the United Mine Workers must choose between a continued effort to maintain the nominal wage level and an effort to rehabilitate their organization in the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields by seeking a working agreement which will be in line with the economic facts in the situation.

"They must decide whether their greatest stake is in the maintenance of the existing union wage scale or in the immediate recovery of the Pennsylvania and Ohio fields. At the same time the miners can not be expected to accept even a temporary reduction in the scale unless the operators are willing to resume collective bargaining, and to give some assurance of steadier working time and increased annual earnings."

The report in conclusion suggests co-operation between the operators and mine workers with a view to the gradual elimination of surplus mines and mine workers by the operation of economic law.

Falling-Off in Coal Production.

The falling-off in coal production is strikingly reflected in the decreased freight business, which for the first fifteen weeks of the present year was the lightest since 1924. The coal loadings for the period named were twenty-four per cent. less than those of the corresponding period in 1927, but the situation is hardly so bad as this awful drop would indicate for the reason that coal shipments were extraordinarily large during the first quarter of last year in anticipation of the strike which went into effect April 1. At that time there were 75,000,000 tons of commercial coal in storage. During the year there was a decline of 54,000,000 tons in production, consumption being so much greater than production that the tonnage of commercial coal stored dropped from the record mark of 75,000,000 April 1, 1927, to 55,000,000, the first day of the present year.

It was anticipated that production this year would compare favorably with production last year following the beginning of the strike, but the 54,000,000-ton decrease in production in 1927 was followed by a 42,000,000-ton falling-off the first sixteen weeks of the present year. For the past five years the average coal production was a little in excess of 10,000,000 tons weekly, but the first three months of this year there was a decrease of about 500,000 tons a week and the first three weeks of April showed a weekly decrease of almost 2,500,000 tons. This heavy decrease in coal production naturally caused a corresponding decrease in coke shipments, and these two decreases are chiefly responsible for the decreased freight business of the railroads, for, although there were some decreases in other classifications of freight, the increase of nine per cent. in grain shipments and 4.5 per cent. in livestock more than compensated for such other decreased shipments.

Publicity for Hypocrisy.

Something of a sensation has been created in the federal capital by the editorial announcement of a Washington paper that henceforth it proposes "to publish as news the appearance on duty of any so-called dry member of the house or senate in an obviously intoxicated condition."

The Washington despatch carrying the announcement says that it is manifestly uttered that there may not be repetition of such scenes as were enacted during the closing hours of the last session of congress when one senator who is recognized as a leading champion of prohibition had to be led out of the senate chamber, while four or five others groped their way in and out of the cloakrooms in full view of the gallery crowds.

The editorial goes on to state that, while it is disgusting to behold a senator or representative, under the influence of liquor, attempting to discuss affairs of state, when such a senator or representative is one who consistently votes for prohibition, the hypocrisy displayed and the rank abuse of special privilege is simply intolerable. The paper in question doesn't intend to conduct a snooping campaign, the editorial states, nor does it propose to have its reporters "waste their time analyzing the breath of statesmen," but it gives fair notice that "when a fire-eating prohibitionist wanders aimlessly about the senate chamber during the discussion of important business and finally interrupts to ask the presiding officer, 'Whas bizness before house?' or when a similar exponent of the Volstead act has to hang hard to the edge of his desk, while his legs weave unsteadily under him as he attempts to make a speech, or when a champion of the eighteenth amendent relapses from maudlin inattention into snoring sleep in the midst of a senate session," it will undertake to make his condition clear to its readers.

For its editorial, we get it that this Washington paper doesn't propose to attempt to stop drinking among statesmen, conceding that "they are as much entitled to the synthetic pleasure as anybody else," but that it does insist "that the sickening hypocrisy in high places, now too general, shall no longer be accepted as a matter of course."

We regret that we haven't the editorial at hand, but only an outline. Possibly we might be impressed otherwise, were we to read it in its entirety, but, judging from the extracts which have come to us, it doesn't ring true. It impresses us as having been written more for the purpose of administering a blow to the cause of prohibition than in the interest of temperance in our federal halls of legislation. In fact, it says as much in so many words, for its entire force is directed against hypocrisy rather than against intemperance. It doesn't propose to show up drunkenness in our legislative bodies; it merely intends to show up hypocrisy made manifest by drunkenness. In a word, it makes hypocrisy on the part of a legislator a far greater offense than the violation of the oath he takes when becoming a legislator. Drunkenness, it holds, is disgusting, but hypocrisy is intolerable.

If we are right in getting the position of this Washington paper, a wet legislator can take advantage of the special privilege accorded him as a legislator, violate the prohibition amendment, get drunk and appear in the halls of congress in a drunken condition, thus disgracing not only his country, but himself and his constituents as well, and yet not be intolerable. It is only when such an offender against law and decency is guilty also of hypocrisy that he offends beyond the pale of its forbearance and is to be written up.

If members of the senate and house have been appearing in the condition represented, their cases are indefensible whether they be wet or dry, and if they thus offend in the future and are to be written up, they should be given publicity regardless of their attitude toward prohibition.

This Washington paper would overlook the theft of a horse, but would crucify the thief should he at the same time steal a halter.

UNCLEAN.

Childs' Food Must Meet Tests.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A baby's life is filled with danger. No matter how well and strong the infant, there are many troubles which must be overcome. When the baby grows old enough to wean, or when for any other reason the mother must submit her child to bottle feeding, there are many dangers to guard against.

The common substitute for mother's milk is cow's milk. But cow's milk differs materially from mother's milk, therefore, it must be "modified." That is, additions must be made to give it more nearly the qualities of human milk.

The protein content is greater than that of mother's milk. You can see why this is: The baby calf grows more rapidly than the human baby and on this account it must have the building materials which the proteins supply.

Another difference lies in the quantity of sugar. Mother's milk contains fifty per cent. more sugar than cow's milk.

These differences are liable to cause serious trouble if clear cow's milk is given the baby. That is why such milk must be modified to adapt it to the baby's requirements.

The unfamiliar quantities of protein would cause the cow's milk to coagulate into hard curds in the stomach. To overcome this, gruels are added to the milk. They act to break up the mass.

Milk sugar must be added to supply the deficiency of sugar, and water is poured in to establish the proper proportions.

The general principles involved in modifying cow's milk are indicated by this formula:

To sixteen ounces of milk are added twelve ounces of barley water, or some other gruel, a teaspoonful of sugar and a pinch of salt. Under certain conditions, lime water is another essential addition.

I have told you many times with what care the utensils must be cleansed and how necessary cleanliness is at every stage of the food preparation if the safety of the child is to be guaranteed. In this connection when I use the word "cleanliness," I mean the same cleanliness demanded by the surgeon in preparing for an operation. It is a degree of cleanliness which means freedom from germ infection. To this end everything used in the process must be thoroughly boiled.

When the milk is modified and ready for the baby, the supply must be kept in such a way as to prevent the growth of the germs of fermentation. Therefore, the prepared milk must be kept cold. At no time must it be permitted to rise above 40 degrees temperature. If it does, harm may result.

Bear in mind that the formula I have given is intended merely to give you an idea of how modification of milk is accomplished. The age and condition of your baby will determine the exact proportions of the ingredients. You will talk with your doctor about this.

EFFECT OF THE BAUMES LAWS.

Figures just compiled by the police commissioner of New York City relative to crime in the metropolis in 1927 constitute unmistakable evidence of the efficacy of the Baumes laws, which were operative throughout the year. Murders of citizens resulting from robberies decreased fifty-eight per cent. as compared with 1926. Murders of police decreased forty-four per cent. Murder and manslaughter cases during the year totaled 278, compared with 281 the year previous. Assault and robbery cases totaled 951, in comparison with 1,173. There was a decrease of sixty-nine per cent. in hold-ups, involving more than $10,000, and fifty-two per cent. in those between $1,000 and $10,000. Pay roll hold-ups decreased sixty-four per cent. In only one class of crimes was there an increase, burglaries advanced from 3,371 in 1926 to 3,380 in 1927, and this increase was attributed to sneak thieves engaged in daylight robberies.

The Baumes laws, which were enacted about eighteen months ago, constituting a new criminal code for the state of New York, increased the penalties for various classes of crimes, and especially for repeated breaches of the law. They somewhat simplified the procedure in the trial of such cases and made evasion of penalties more difficult than before. At first the criminal classes did not take the new enactments seriously, but they soon learned that the new laws had "teeth" in them, and, after a few sentences of life imprisonment for third offenses were imposed, it became evident to the chronic criminals that it was dangerous to continue the practice of lawlessness as a means of making a living.

There is need of further reform. The court procedure remains too complex and offers dangerous opportunities for delay and evasion. Shorter cuts to justice are required. The "fence" problem has not been solved. The evil of professional bondsmen who work in collusion with crime directors through attorneys who are no less than the legal agents of professional lawbreakers is still to be abated. Efforts to reach a solution of these problems are now being made in further studies by committees of the legislature at Albany, and new enactments are likely to be made at the present session.

Other states than New York are watching the course of events in that jurisdiction, and moves toward the enactment of similar statutes are being made. The annual report of the police commissioner, showing a marked decrease in crime, will greatly stimulate these endeavors. — Washington Star.

WISCONSIN CATCHES STEP.

Wisconsin has presented a peculiar problem in party politics for the last twenty years. Within recent days it has shown some symptoms of returning to normal.

Following the primary in Wisconsin week before last, it required pretty much all the time since for the situation to so settle and clarify as to be fully intelligible. It now appears that those who may be called regular Republicans have made appreciable gains over La Follettelism.

Wisconsin Republicans for years past have presented the strange spectacle of being nominally within the national party and yet in every practical and even theoretical sense being a third, or, as it might be said, a state party unto themselves. So contradictory has this position been that it is not at all surprising hat there is a growing sentiment with Republicans of the state to once more catch step with the party at large.

Wisconsin Republicanism for long years centered around the personality of the older La Follette. The present Senator La Follette appears quite a forceful young man, but it is increasingly apparent that he can not permanently wield a power equal to that of his father.

Considerable advancement of a liberal nature may be credited to Wisconsin in recent years, but in attaining her advances Wisconsin has seemed to assume the position of a little principality set down in an alien country. Wisconsin has long been considered the "odd sheep" in the flock of states. The influence of Wisconsin Republicans in the national party has fallen nearly to zero. Little wonder there is support for those who would catch step again.—Lansing Journal.

LIFE SENTENCES

That the trustees of the Indiana state prison refused to recommend clemency at this time for eighteen of twenty-one life term prisoners who sought release may be regarded as a hopeful sign. For the last few years, when a man was sentenced to prison for life, everybody concerned began to figure on how soon he would be released. Nobody felt that the sentence would be served. More recently the trustees of the state prison are giving not only the public but the prisoners to understand that a sentence may mean what it says. The usual plea for clemency is that the state should take into consideration the prisoner's family. Sometimes a prisoner's wife and children are destitute and become objects if charity. Everybody sympathizes with them, but sympathy should not stop with the prisoner's family. In cases of killings it is well to think of the feelings of those who were related by blood or marriage to the victim and to the effect on society that releases of killers may have. Society would abolish prisons and reformatories if it could, but when the matter of sympathy and consideration comes to the fore, it is pertinent to remember that a prisoner is punished for his acts. He made the choice between right and wrong and it is the duty of the state to make him suffer the consequences.—Indianapolis News.

The Christian Era.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Under the heading 'Memorable Dates' I read the following: 'B. C. 4, birth of Jesus Christ; A. D. 29, the crucifixion.' Please explain why Christ was not born in the year A. D. 1, and died in the year A. D. 33.—D. K., U. S. Marine Corps Headquarters, Washington."

The Christian era was intended to begin with the actual date of the birth, or the incarnation of Christ. But to fix that date in the frame of world time, it was necessary to know when the incarnation took place with reference to the course of general events. The world had been populated, and great world events had occurred, thousands of years before Christ was born. The early Christians, it is said, wishing to separate themselves from the pagan world, related the date of the incarnation to that of the creation of the world. This would have been all right if the date of creation had been certainly established. But, in fact, the Jewish scriptures threw no sure light on the question, and the various reckonings differed widely, because they rested on "impossible and inconsistent genealogies," and not on any scientific facts or verifiable data and monuments. As many as 200 different calculations of the date of the creation are said to have been made before the Christian era was calculated on a different basis, in the middle of the sixth century, by Dionysius Exiguus, a Roman monk, who using the Greek "Olympiads" and the Roman "A. U. C."—Ab Urbis Conditae—"from Rome's foundation"—for comparison, made the year 1 of his Christian era correspond with the fourth year of the 194th Olympiad and with the year 753 A. U. C.

Neither the era A. U. C. nor that of the Olympiads was known with certainty, but since both ran far back of the time of Christ's birth and had been long accepted as historic guideposts, they served the purpose that Dionysius had in view. His system was immediately adopted in Italy, but it did not spread through western Europe and the British Isles until the eighth and ninth centuries. It became known as the "Era of the Incarnation," also called the "Vulgar" or "Common Era," it symboy being the letters A. D.—Anna Domini—"In the Year of Our Lord."

But modern studies in archaeology and history have led to the conclusion that Dionysius was in error in his calculations to the extent of at least four years, and that in using the "Era of the Foundation of Rome" for a measure he fixed the incarnation four years too late, so that, if his system is retained, the date of Christ's birth must be B. C. 4, instead of A. D. 1. Some calculations even ascribe as much as six or seven years error to the Dionysian era. Dr. C. F. Deems calculated that it should fall upon A. U. C. 747 instead of 753. This would make it correspond with the 187th Olympiad. Of course the years within the Christian era are not affected these alterations of its beginning as measured by other eras, so that the length of Christ's life remains the same, notwithstanding the uncertainty as to the precise point in world history upon which it fell.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

NEGRO DYING AFTER KILLING PATROLMEN

Shot When He Jumps from Automobile Carrying Him from Mob

Middletown, May 7—George McCullen, Negro, who shot and fatally wounded two Middletown policemen Saturday night during a gun battle following an attempt to escape arrest, was slowly dying at the Middletown Hospital today.

McCullen was shot by police when he jumped from an automobile rushing him from Hamilton to Middletown to avert threatened lynching. He was then brought to the local hospital where hospital attendants said there was no hope for his recovery.

The negro confessed, police said, that he shot Patrolmen Elbert Crout, 32, and Harold W. Roth of Middletown, while resisting arrest on a liquor charge. Roth died Saturday night and Crout Sunday morning.

The dying Negro's father, who is alleged to have aided McCullen in his battle with police, is being held without bond and will be charged with first degree murder.

IN YOUR GARDEN

GET AFTER WEEDS EARLY

CULTIVATION of the garden can start to excellent advantage before the soil is fit for digging. It ought to start when the first dandelion shows its yellow head. Stab it before it has a chance to seed. A clean sweep of the perennial weeds may be made early in the spring, rooting out dandelions and plantains, digging out grasses that have found a foothold the previous year without being detected and by getting rid of these weeds a big start on easing the garden work of the year is accomplished.

With the first warm days of spring the weed seeds which are very hardy begin to show signs of life. Weeds will appear in myriads. Take a hoe or hand weeder and start on them as soon as they show. Asparagus patches are too often allowed to be weed nurseries, the weeds concealing themselves in midsummer after the asparagus has been allowed to grow up and becoming a nursery from which weed seed is disseminated. It is customary and an excellent plan to give the asparagus a mulch of stable manure whenever possible and stable manure invariably brings a fresh crop of weeds. Clean culture of the asparagus bed from the start will do away with a big weed supply.

Look for dandelions and plantains in the lawn and in the garden patch and cut them out. There are excellent hand weeders especially made to uproot these intruders with little damage to the sod. Grass is the easiest of weeds to get rid of when it is in the seedling stage. Nothing gives more trouble once the roots have taken hold.

Keep after any signs of grass in the garden. Mark the vegetable rows plainly and hoe between them lightly before the seeds germinate. This is the time when weeds get a start as the average gardener is afraid to hoe for fear he will dig up his vegetables. Mark the rows plainly and the weed crop between them can be suppressed without difficulty.

START HOEING WEEDS AS SOON AS THEY SHOW

A gentle stirring of the soil with a garden rake is an excellent means of cultivation and will prevent the first growth of weeds from becoming established. There are several styles of hoe armed with tines at the back of the cutting blade for the purpose of stirring the soil. They are admirable garden tools.

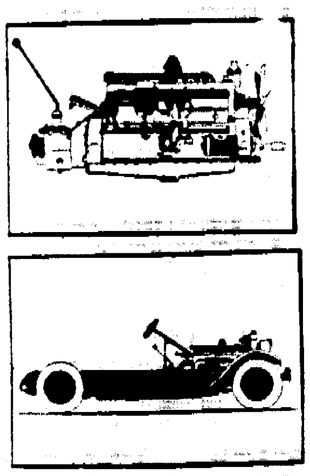
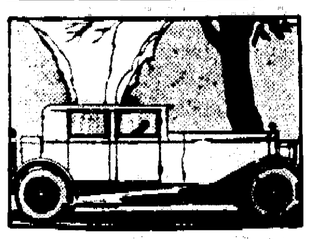
MILES PER DOLLAR NOT MILES PER GALLON





NOTE

When you purchase an automobile, you buy MILEAGE.

The mileage you receive is the return on your INVESTMENT.

The lower the first cost in relation to the mileage your car contains—the greater the RETURN on your investment.

Sound reasoning tells us that every car on the STREET is a USED CAR.

STANDARDS have changed so that we can purchase RELIABLE USED CARS.

IT IS "MILES PER DOLLAR—NOT MILES PER GALLON" that is purchased in the motor, chassis—and general appearance of the car today—

AN INVESTMENT IN MILEAGE

Your neighbor buys a NEW CAR—drives it a year—TRADES it in—HE PAID A NEW CAR PRICE—yet used comparatively little of the mileage it contained—

NOW the car is offered for sale in THE CLASSIFIED SECTION.

PRICED far below FIRST COST—MOST of its MILEAGE still INTACT—GREATER returns on your INVESTMENT.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Clowning Lovers

WHAT is it about a middle-aged man that seems so attractive to the modern girl?

• • •

Well—sometimes it is a halo of gold dollars and an aura of generosity; but more often it is the glamor of old-fashioned romance. And savoir faire!

• • •

The average modern youth seems to have learned all he knows of love making from the pie-throwing comedies. His idea of a woman-charmer is a combination of Charlie Chaplin, Ed Wynne and a John Held jazz-boy. Shades of Rudolph Valentino!

• • •

For a woman, success in love may consist in her ability to pretend to be only playing, when she is serious. But, for a man, success in love consists in his ability to pretend to be serious, when he is only playing.

• • •

The modern Big Boy cannot stop showing off and "being FUNNY" long enough, all the world's convincingly. To him, all the world's a Great Big Joke, and all the men and women merely vaudeville players!

• • •

He can offer a girl a kiss or his heart and hand so casually, that you'd think he was merely offering her an olive. S he doesn't know whether he is trying to josh her or trying to marry her.

• • •

You seldom see a young man gazing rapidly into a girl's eyes across a restaurant table, these days. He is too busy doing cute tricks with the knives and forks or thinking up snappy comebacks. Cheering! Even the sight of the new Spring moon only fills him with a burning desire to think up something "bright and funny" to say about it.

• • •

A woman can forgive a man who makes her suffer, and even one who makes her weep; but she can never forgive one who makes her blush—who makes himself ridiculous!

• • •

The men of the violin decade, were young when love making was an ART; and though their "line" was not so perfervid, they could kiss a girl's fingertips in a way to send a thrill right through her that buttoned up the back.

• • •

The lovers of the saxophone decade say it mostly with noise, antics and violent mauling. This does not fill a woman with sentiment. It fills her with laughter, amusement, nausea, boredom or indignation, according to her type.

• • •

To a woman, love is NO JOKE and there is nothing really hilarious about a kiss.

• • •

Tenderness, gentleness and the adoring manner are nine points of the Love game!

• • •

A CLOWN is a nice thing to have in a circus or to watch in a moving picture comedy; but it is not what you want to go strolling with under a Summer moon, or to stand beside at the altar, or to introduce as "my husband!"

• • •

That is why you see the restaurants filled with pretty baby-eyed girls gazing adoringly into the eyes of middle-aged men.

EVERYTHING UP SINCE PLANES WERE INVENTED

Boston—"Them was the good old days"—back in 1892, when everything was lower including the price of coal and the length of skirts.

In removing an old letter box from a Back Bay apartment house, a mechanic found in the wall an old card which gave the prices of coal and wood for that period.

Stove coal at that time sold for $5.75 a ton delivered; egg was $5.25, while furnace coal sold for $5.00 a ton. Hard kindlings were $12 a cord, and pine kindlings, $11 per cord.

The poor mechanic sighed and soliliquised, "with the advent of airplanes everything went up."

MUSIC WEEK

No Special Programs Planned for Observance of National Affair

While no special programs have been arranged by members of the Marion Lecture-Recital Club in observance of National Music Week, which starts today, attention is being called to the observance of it by Mrs. Alberto Reardon, Youngstown, Music Week State Chairman. Members of the club have just concluded one of the most successful years of the organization's existence and as a climax to the season presented a series of three free concerts, their contribution to civic interests of the city.

The week is fostered by members of the national state and local music clubs through a desire to bring the benefits of music to a much larger circle of people.

Members of the Canto Club have planned their annual anniversary concert to be presented tonight with the observance of National Music Week in view.

"... I think you're awfully nice," ... woman! Don't make love to ... I'll be scandalized! By the ... —well, never mind," he ... abruptly.

"Never mind what?" Monica demanded, with feminine curiosity and persistence.

"Nothing. Just a foolish thought."

"I must know what it is. I want to know all of your little foolish thoughts as well as your fine, noble ones."

"Well—of course this is only a suggestion from a mere man—but it seems to me you can take one of those empty 20-pound meal sacks I saw in your cupboard, cut a hole in each bottom corner for the baby's legs, a hole in each side near the top for his arms, put a draw string around the mouth of the sack, shove the child into the sack and draw it tight about his neck. You'd have him dressed in a jiffy."

"That's an excellent idea and I'll act on it immediately, Tony." She stood over him, beaming down at him with those great lambent brown eyes that thrilled him so; she seemed to be studying him. Presently she ruffled his black poll. "Just a play-boy," she murmured, apparently to herself. "Just a big baby play-boy!"

She tucked the infant into his improvised bed in the wood-box and returned to the kitchen.

Garland spent that night stretched on the floor in front of the fireplace, rising from time to time to minister to Bob Mason. After luncheon next day he mounted his horse and rode over to Uncle Charley's late residence near Dogwood Flats.

The deceased heller's two little spockled pack-mules were in a tiny corral back of a wretched little barn, and by the eagerness with which they met him at the gate he realized that had been without food or water for 18 hours.

When he had watered and fed them he took both in charge, placed the pack-saddles with the kyacks on them and rode over to the foot of the trail leading up to Bogus.

About 5 o'clock Sheriff Bentley came up the road through Tantrum Meadows, and Garland was relieved to see a woman seated beside him in his car. Bentley introduced her as Mrs. Kloz.

From the tonneau of Bentley's car the sheriff and Garland removed the groceries and sick-room supplies, stowing them in the kyacks. To the pack saddles they bound the two cots, the bedding and blankets, and to the top of one of these loads the gallant sheriff swung the nurse.

"Set there comfortable and hang on to the pack-rope," he admonished her, "and you'll git there yet. If you feel yourself slippin, call out to the ranger."

He waved them a debonair farewell and motored up the valley until he came to the trail leading up Jumshug Creek. He followed this until he came to the main Forest Service road that led off to the west through the narrow mountain meadow in the center of which Bob Mason, Baldy and the baby had crouched in the water-hole, while the fire raged around them.

This road would lead him over the western foot-hills and down to Montague, the county-seat, by the shortest possible route. However, he was not in a time-or mile-saving mood this late afternoon. The mystery of the parentage of Bob Mason's baby was worrying him, and for the purpose of unraveling this mystery he had chosen this route home.

Half-way up the hillside he found the skeleton of a motorcar in the spot Bob Mason had described to him, and pinned under the gaunt chassis a burned, baked, blackened thing that had once been a mother. The steel beam had crushed down through her torso to such a depth that the sheriff realized she had been spared the horror of being extinguished slowly by fire.

On the license bracket the warped and blackened license plate still clung, but the letters and figures had been stamped into the metal and their outlines could be easily traced. The sheriff made a memorandum of them, then laboriously gathered wash boulders in the bed of the little stream below and piled them up and over the body in such a manner as to protect it from hungry coyotes until he could notify the coroner at Montague and have an inquest held on the scene of the accident, after which the body would be removed for burial.

It was late when he reached home. After dinner he went down to his office and searched through the list of motor licenses with which all chiefs of police and county sheriffs are furnished by the state motor vehicle office. As these records came to his office from the state capitol his chief clerk had compiled them in alphabetical and numerical order, and it was an easy matter to discover the name of the owner of that burned automobile.

The sheriff lighted his pipe and for a long time sat pondering his discovery. "Sort o' looks as if God A'mighty concluded to take a hand in Bob Mason's affairs," he soliloquized presently. "Well, I'd rather get a poke in the eye with a sharp stick than do the job I've got to do, but—it's just naturally got to be done. So I'd better fly to it. Some more of the hell of my job as a sheriff."

He walked down the street to a pretentious house standing in the midst of a spacious lawn, and rang the doorbell. A man came to the door and opened it.

"Evenin', Jim," said Bentley, politely. "Got a few minutes to spare? There's a little matter I've got to talk over with you."

"Certainly. Come in, Zeke." He led him into the living-room. "What's on your mind?"

"Where's the missus, Jim?"

"Visiting her folks over at Alturas."

"When were you expectin' her back?"

"Well, I've been expecting her the past two days, but I reckon her folks decided to keep her with them a little longer. Why do you ask?"

Bentley ignored the query. "She had the baby with her, didn't she?"

"Yes. What of it? Has anything happened?"

"She drove over in your roadster?"

"Yes, yes, of course."

The sheriff put his big hand on the other's shoulder. "Jim, I'd rather be shot than tell you what I'm here to tell you, but you've got to be told. Jim, the little woman ain't a-comin' back to you." And then, with remarkable gentleness, he gave the details, while the other sat staring at him, saying no word, not even weeping. "The baby wasn't hurt," the sheriff went on rapidly, anxious to alleviate the terrible hurt he was inflicting. "A feller ridin' by a few minutes after the accident found the child, so he saved the youngster, and I'll bring him in to you tomorrow."

"Who — was — the — man?" The sheriff's auditor swallowed and spoke with difficulty. "I'm—beholden—to—him."

"Bob Mason. You remember you prosecuted him two years ago for killin' the superintendent of the Hercules Hydraulic Minin' Company? Well, he escaped from the convict road gang over in El Norte County and as luck would have it——"

"Mason? The man I sent to San Quentin for life?"

"Ye-e-p! Same feller."

"Oh, my God, Zeke!"

"That's what I say. Reckon you might have talked to the jury different and got him a better break if you'd knowed the debt you was to be under to him later on. I always did figger you was a mite severe with Bob Mason in that case."

"Don't, Zeke. Don't torture me."

"I won't. You got enough without me addin' to it. . . . Well, I'll bring the baby in to you tomorrow night—no, don't ask me where the child is. I'll not tell you."

"And Mason? Have you recaptured him?"

"Not officially. . . . Reckon you'd prefer to be alone now, Jim, so if you'll excuse me I'll be moseyin' along. I wouldn't come out to the coroner's inquest if I was you. Stay in town and make arrangements for the funeral. You want to remember the wife as you seen her last—understand. We'll place her in a coffin and seal it. Good night, Jim. I'm most a'mighty sorry for you."

He stalked out of that stricken home and back to his own comfortable bungalow. About an hour after he came in he told his wife about it.

"I wish the poor devil could cry some," he complained. That'd help!"

"The shallows murmur, but the deeps are dumb," his wife replied, and for the first time in many years the sheriff remembered she had been a school-teacher before he married her.

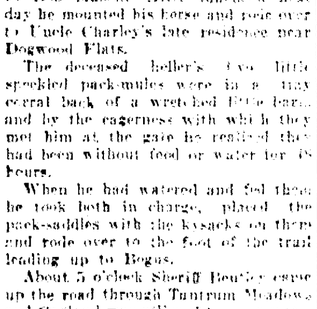
Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby

-Babies Have Nerves-

By RUTH BRITTAIN



Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.—Adv.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

The Chief Takes a Hand in Plans

MY father's voice interrupted Lillian's reading of the typed letter I had brought to him at the request of the redbearded man in the shack.

"I take it that by 'explosive' he means the paper of Sumerian characters, a copy of which Madge is now decoding."

Allen Drake and Lillian nodded assent and Lillian resumed the reading.

"I can't hold this fellow off more than two or three more nights, or he'll get suspicious of me. Here's what you must do. Get the girl to the farmhouse, pronto, and keep her there. Take the old woman to a hospital and settle the old man in a room near by. They'll do anything the girl tells them to, and her being left alone provides a plausible excuse for her coming to the farmhouse. We'll have to use her for a decoy—sorry, but it can't be helped. Explain as much as you think necessary to make her understand what would be the result of handing over that t.n.t. to Sergius, my present side-kick. I don't need to hand you any dope. It's the same thing you have just been working on—they're running around in circles wondering where the birds you pretended to be have flown to."

"The man's clairvoyant!" my father ejaculated, then motioned Lillian to go on.

"Sergius has evolved a little side plan of his own—his type would—to kidnap the girl and hold her for ransom. He's counting on me to help him, so when she comes out to meet us after I give her the message, I'll grab her, put a blanket over her head and skedaddle, ostensibly for the shack. You see, I'm to be the one to meet her and he is to be just a few feet behind me, ready to deal with anybody who might follow her. So keep well out of his sight and hearing, yet near enough to tackle him after I make the play of grabbing her. He probably will be following me, and you may be able to get him from behind. Don't one of you make the mistake of coming alone. He's an ugly customer, equally handy with a gat or a knife and heeled with both. Have two able-bodied men anyway. Suggest Drake and the husband of the lady who brings this to you. Of course, you can't spill the beans to anybody else, although Jim is safe for a lookout. While you're tackling Petrov, I'll double back to the farmhouse with the girl. Be sure to have the kitchen door and the opposite one on the side veranda ready to open, as I won't know which side of the house I'd better take. Have all your curtains drawn and only necessary lights.

"Tell the girl to have a faked bit of dynamite ready to hand me. It must look like the real thing, so that when he grabs it, as he will when I tie her up, he won't have any suspicion of the truth. Also tell her not to be afraid when she hears my especial brand of the owl's hoot next time—she'll know what I mean—but to come out to talk to me at once. I'll tell her then when she's to come to meet me with the faked explosive.

"You won't hear from me again till I give the owl's hoot for the girl. But get her down to the farmhouse today. Petrov's going around in circles because the white-haired millionaire was doing sentry-go around there last night. He can't understand and when his kind of bird can't understand anything there is danger of his running amok."

Lillian finished the reading in the same even tones with which she had begun it, but I noticed that her fingers were slightly tremulous as they folded the paper mechanically.

"He's a thorough bird. I'll say that for him." Allen Drake drawled, "and as his information is no doubt accurate, it strikes me we'd better get busy, don't you think so, Chief?"

There was deference in his voice and look, but my father's face set in sad lines and did not brighten.

"The fellow's right," he said at last. "You and Richard must be the ones to act in this—I should only hamper you in any struggle—but can you imagine how I feel at sending you—remaining away from danger—"

Lillian's hand went over his mouth affectionately.

"Whoever heard of a wounded general being permitted to go out in the front trenches?" she demanded. "Snap out of it, Chief, and lay out the campaign for me. We're waiting for orders."

His eyes brightened perceptibly as he looked up at her.

"The official tonic for tired nerves and despondent hearts," he said fondly. Then he straightened himself to a sitting posture, pushing aside his supporting pillows.

"Two things must be done at once," he said. "Get the Princess Olina here, and bring Richard home."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

IT rained all day Sunday, which was yesterday, and the wind blew off the lake. My grandfather said it blew 50 miles an hour, but my grandfather is a liar most of the time so I don't know if he was stringing me or not. I asked him how he knew and he said a man got in an auto and went the same way the wind was blowing and when he got going so fast that there didn't seem to be any wind he looked at his speedometer and that was how fast the wind was blowing. I asked him if the man stepped on it and got going faster than the wind if he wouldn't think the wind was blowing the other way. I think he would.

I let Jubilee down out of the window by the rope in his teeth and the wind was blowing between the houses so hard that I almost flew him like a kite. The wind was so cold and the rain so wet that when I came in from milking the dummed brutes I was almost frozen. I set the pail of milk down on the floor whilst I warmed my hands at the kitchen stove and my grandfather came out in the kitchen and the cat had her head in the milkpail and my grandfather gave her a kick that landed her against my ant. The cat hung there like a breast-pin and turned around and spatted at my grandfather, and I think that pleased my ant, and she petted the cat and called my grandfather a brute. I said the cat hadn't hurt the milk any because it had not been strained yet, and then they all laughed. My mother put the milk in a big pan and set it outside the door and the cat went out with it. Jubilee came up and stuck his nose in the milk and the cat reached for him like she was boxing. Every time Jubilee would go to put his nose in the milk the cat would scratch at it, not that seemed to give him an idee. He used one of his paws like the cat did and gave her a sideswipe that knocked her clean off the step, and she stood there and howled and spatted at him till he finished the milk. I have got the only boxing dog in the world I bet.

Today was colder and rainier and wetter and windier than yesterday, and the wind blew the rain up under the shingles and some of it came through onto my bed and as soon as I felt it I kicked Jubilee out of bed, but it kept coming through more and more. I got up and went to make a fire, but it had come through on my chair and my pants and matches were wet, and I rolled them up and went and hung them downstairs as I was going to go down and make a fire and sleep on the lounge. My ant had heard me stirring around and opened the stair door and my pants hit her in the face and she woke up the family, and wanted me father to lick me, but he didn't. Darn a ant.
